May15: Better M2 & loan growth

- Potential injection of PSL may further revive M2 growth.
- Loan growth partly boosted by recovery in bill finance.
- Projecting slower trust & entrusted loan growth. Keep O/W.

What's New

M2 growth on a slight recovery track. M2 growth rebounded slightly, up 10.8% YoY in May 2015 after falling for two straight months. This was partly due to improvement in trade balance & positive multiplier effect from RRR cut in late Apr 2015. According to media reports, the PBOC may have injected a total of CNY1.5t of long-term liquidity into the banking system through 3-5Y pledged supplementary lending (PSL) in early Jun 2015. This should help partly refuel growth momentum in M2 in the coming months.

Decline in individual deposits; rebound in bill finance. Excluding deposits from non-bank FIs, RMB deposits grew CNY1.3t MoM in May 2015, mainly driven by an increase in corporate deposits. Individual deposits fell for the second month in a row by CNY441b MoM in May 2015 while deposits from non-bank FIs grew faster by CNY1.9t MoM. This may imply more individual deposits have shifted to brokers' accounts for stock trading. Still, RMB loan growth grew faster than consensus forecast in May 2015 (+CNY901b MoM vs +CNY850b), with continued strong growth in infrastructure loans and residential mortgages. The softening in SHIBOR helped revive the growth in discounted bill finance (+CNY223b MoM in May 2015). Overall, if we assume: (i) loan growth in Jun 2015 will be similar to that in May 2015; and (ii) loan growth in 1H15 is equivalent to 60% of the full-year loan growth (similar to historical pattern), we estimate 2015 sector loan growth will be -CNY11t (or 13.5% YoY).

Decline in trust loans; slowdown in entrusted loans. Trust loans continued to fall by CNY19.5b. We believe the local governments have shifted from trust loans to new bonds issued for infrastructure projects. Growth in entrusted loans also moderated to CNY32.4b, largely reflecting banks' cautious attitude to be the intermediary agents of these loans. We project trust loans to decline by -CNY160b while growth in entrusted loans will reduce to 6% YoY in 2015 (+CNY517b & +29.2% YoY in 2014).

What's Our View

Maintain OVERWEIGHT. We expect net profit growth of 3-22% for most H-share banks in 2015. Key drivers are strong loan growth & net fees growth. Our Top Picks are ABC, CCB and CQRB.

Summary of May 2015 monetary statistics

- Slight improvement in M2 growth. M2 growth rebounded slightly to 10.8% YoY in May 2015 (+10.1% YoY in Apr 2015). This was above the Bloomberg consensus forecast (+10.4% YoY). This was partly due to the rebound in RMB/USD forward rate, the improvement in trade balance in May 2014 (USD59.5b vs USD34.1b in Apr 2015) and the positive multiplier effect from RRR cut in late Apr 2015. However, the M2 growth remained below the PBOC's target of 12% for 2015. According to media reports, the PBOC may have injected a total of CNY1.5t into the banking system through 3-5Y pledged supplementary lending (PSL) in early Jun 2015. This should help further revive the M2 growth in the coming months.
- Further decline in individual deposits. In line with the recovery in M2 growth, total customer deposits also surged by CNY3.2t MoM in May 2015 (+CNY0.9b MoM in Apr 2015). Excluding deposits from non-bank financial institutions (FIs), total deposits still grew CNY1.3t MoM in May 2015 (-CNY159b MoM in Apr 2015), mainly due to the increase in corporate deposits (+CNY1t MoM). However, individual deposits fell for the second month in a row by CNY441b MoM in May 2015. Deposits from non-bank FIs (including brokers) continued to grow faster by CNY1.9t in May 2015 (+CNY1t MoM in Apr 2015). This may imply more money flowing from individual deposits into the brokers' accounts for stock trading.
- Faster-than-expected loan growth. RMB loan growth grew faster by CNY901b MoM in May 2015 (+CNY718b MoM in Apr 2015). This was higher than the Bloomberg consensus forecast (+CNY850b). Key loan growth drivers included long-term corporate loans (i.e. infrastructure project financing) and long-term individual loans (proxy of mortgages). Besides, the softening in SHIBOR has prompted a shift from short-term corporate loans (proxy of SME loans) (+CNY30b MoM in May 2015) to discounted bill finance (+CNY223b MoM in May 2015). The loan-to-deposit ratio (LDR) of China banks reduced slightly from 68.9% in Apr 2015 to 67.9% in May 2015.
- Further decline in trust loans. Total aggregate financing grew faster by CNY1.22t in May 2015 (CNY1.05t in Apr 2015). This was higher than the Bloomberg consensus forecast of CNY1.13t. Trust loans continued to decline by CNY19.5b, probably reflecting the shift from trust loans by local government financing vehicles (LGFV) to local government bonds. Growth in entrusted loans remained weak at CNY32.4b, partly reflecting banks' cautious attitude to be intermediary agents of entrusted loans. The rebound in undiscounted bankers' acceptance (+CNY95.5b MoM in May 2015) should be partly related to the recovery in discounted bill finance.
